Program Description, Equations, Variables This program uses a random number generator subroutine to store the "secret" number. The subsequent number guesses by both players are compared to this number and the number of guesses is incremented and stored by use of the statistical function Σ . If the guess is low the computer will display a "zero", if guess is high, a "one." Upon guessing correctly the computer will display the number of guesses it took and then the correct number. Different numbers are used for each player and in each different set of games. The number of games played is displayed before player one commences. "1111." signifies player one's turn and "2222." is the cue for player two. If any player presses the wrong key (e) player one presses player two's key, the computer will assign the guess to the correct player anyway. The status or "score" is displayed upon pressing the status key — remember, the lowest average wins! The numbers are always between 1 and 1000 and the seed is between one and zero exclusive.

Operating Limits and Warnings ON USING THE STATUS KEY:

Always after player two finishes otherwise "2222." will display telling you he/she must finish his set.

SEQUENCE OF EVENTS DISPLAYED:

- ① NUMBER OF GAMES ② 1111. (PLAYER ONE'S)
- ③ AVG. FOR PLAYER ONE ④ 2222. (PLAYER TWO'S)
- ⑤ AVG FOR PLAYER TWO.

Sample Problem (Sketch if Desired)

LOAD SIDES ONE & TWO.

(SEED) 0.258 E → 11111. (means it's player one's turn)

(GUESS) 500 A → 1 (too high)

(GUESS) 250 A → 0 (TOO LOW)

(GUESS) 375 A → 1 (too high)

(GUESS) 254 A → 4 (flashing, means it took 4 turns)

254 (correct number)

22222. (NOW IS PLAYER'S TWO TURN)

ETC.
